

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A display. The display includes a base and a panel. The base has a first connector, the panel has a second connector, and the panel and base are detachably connected along a vertical axis. The panel faces either a first or a second direction with respect to a horizontal axis on the base. When the panel is connected to the base and faced to the first direction, the first connector is electrically connected to the second connector.